第一节(共 15 小题;每小题 2.5 分,满分 37.5 分)

阅读下列短文,从每题所给的 A、B、C、D 四个选项中选出最佳选项。

A

Books that changed my life

Shakespeare's Kitchen by Lore Segal

Shakespeare's Kitchen not only reveals, sometimes surprisingly, what people were eating in Shakespeare's time but also provides recipes that today's cooks can easily recreate with readily available ingredients.

Persuasion by Jane Austen

In this novel, Anne Eliot is the daughter of a foolish noble. Their home must be rented out and Anne goes to stay with her younger sister Mary. Here she is thrown into the company of Captain Wentworth who offered to marry Anne eight years earlier. But Anne was persuaded to turn him down. He hasn't forgiven her. Anne is forced to watch the man she still loves attach himself to this and that pretty woman.

The Puttermessa Papers by Cynthia Ozick

Puttermesser, a woman of magic, takes some dirt from a flower pot and makes a half man and half god creature which will make her the mayor of New York. During her administration, the city is free of all hate and crime, for a while. The reader who has a strong heart and stomach can stick with Puttermesser to her sad and brutal end.

David Copperfield by Charles Dickens

Dickens showed me what to do with my life. I was twelve when my mother read me David Copperfield about how David's young mother dies and leaves him in the brutal stepfather's care. My favourite character is the young lawyer who responds to misfortune with cheerful goodness. That's what I wanted to do.

()21. Which book do you choose if you prefer a fantasy novel?

- A. Shakespeare's Kitchen.
B. Persuasion.
C. The Puttermesser Papers.
D. David Copperfield.

()22. What can we learn from the books mentioned in the text?

- A. People cooked and ate unhealthily in Shakespeare's time.
- B. Anne and Wentworth's love story may turn out complicated.
- C. Puttermesser is likely to end up living happily with her creature.
- D. The young lawyer holds a negative attitude towards misfortune.

() 23. Which column of a magazine can the text probably be found?

- A. Tourism.
B. Literature.
C. Sports.
D. Entertainment.

B

Michael Jordan is a former professional American basketball player, Olympic athlete, businessperson, and actor. Considered one of the best basketball players ever, he dominated (主宰) the sport from the mid-1980s to the late 1990s.

Michael began his professional basketball career when he was chosen by the Chicago Bulls in 1984. Then, there was a time when the Bulls kept adding new players and changing coaches, but they didn't win. Seeing that, Michael felt like he needed to do all the scoring as he couldn't trust the other players' skills. Many people thought that Michael Jordan might never win a championship if he kept trying to do it all by himself.

To improve their performance on the court, Coach Tex Winter taught the Bulls his triangle offense. It included sharing the ball and moving around the court in a specific way. Michael was unsure. He thought he was the only one that could make the big shots. Tex Winter told him he should learn to trust his teammates to make the triangle offense work best. But that was difficult for Michael.

The Bulls faced the Utah Jazz in the 1997 National Basketball Association Finals. After four games, the score was tied at 2-2.

Finally, Michael scored thirty-eight points and the Bulls won. Then, they had a chance to win the series in Game Six. Michael had the ball near the end of the game with Jazz players swarming (拥上) around him. Instead of trying a difficult shot, he passed the ball to a teammate, Steve Kerr, who made the winning basket. Michael finally trusted his teammates and he didn't always have to take the big shot.

From then on, Michael Jordan led the Chicago Bulls to six NBA Championships and earned the NBA's Most Valuable Player (MVP) Award five times. With five regular-season MVPs and three All-Star MVPs, Michael Jordan became the greatest basketball player of all time.

() 24. How did many people feel about Michael Jordan’s “one-man show”?

- A. Interested. B. Uncertain.
C. Negative. D. Hopeful.

() 25. What does the triangle offense mainly call for according to the text?

- A. Fast speed. B. Great strength.
C. Good teamwork. D. Strong confidence.

()26. What probably led to the Bulls' winning Game Six?

- A. Steve Kerr's unexpected long shot.
- B. Michael Jordan's passing the ball.
- C. Jazz players' serious mistakes.
- D. Some new players' efforts.

()27. What lesson can we learn from the text?

- A. One flower doesn't make a spring.
- B. A hobby can become a successful job.
- C. God helps those who help themselves.
- D. Treat others as you want to be treated.

C

When did you have a really deep conversation where you felt truly heard? Connections of this kind are completely necessary for people but they are not always easy to find. That's why one woman decided to take listening to the streets. Her name is Traci Ruble, a therapist (治疗师) who is concerned that people today are experiencing loneliness and lack personal connections. She understands that with busy lives and demanding jobs, people are unable to make these connections.

On a spring day in 2015, Ruble and a small number of volunteers set up chairs on sidewalks in 12 locations around San Francisco and invited people passing by to sit for a few minutes and chat. This was the beginning of the non-profit Sidewalk Talk. The mission is to create public spaces of connections for people. Today, the organization has more than 4,000 volunteers in 40 cities. These volunteers come from a variety of backgrounds and receive training from the organization.

Sidewalk Talk gives people a chance to speak and be listened to but it is not therapy. “Volunteers are not communicating as a therapist out there. They’re not there to solve someone’s problems. They’re there to practise being human,” Ruble said. According to Ruble, therapy is one-sided and therapists are taught to avoid self-disclosure (自我表露) but by “being human” volunteers could approach interactions with communication about their own life and by showing sympathy for the people they talk with.

Today, an increasing number of people experience loneliness, according to a report from Harvard University. In fact, 31 per cent of all Americans feel serious loneliness including 61 per cent of young adults. To deal with that, rebuilding community relationships is vitally important. While Sidewalk Talk will not solve the loneliness problem, these chats could help someone have a brighter day. Knowing that there are sympathetic people who are willing to fully listen and share people's feelings could make all the difference to a lonely person.

()28. What is the purpose of Sidewalk Talk?

- A. To provide training for those volunteers.
- B. To teach the passers-by how to communicate.
- C. To offer public chances of personal conversations.
- D. To help people reduce pressure at work.

()29. What is the difference between the volunteers of Sidewalk Talk and therapists?

- A. Volunteers provide non-professional therapy.
B. Volunteers prefer one-sided communication.
C. Volunteers are good at showing their success.
D. Volunteers express their experiences and feelings.

()30. What can we infer about Sidewalk Talk from Paragraph 4?

- A. It makes people more sympathetic to others.
B. It offers a solution to the loneliness problem.
C. It plays a role in improving people's feelings.
D. It has promoted community relationships.

- ()31. What is the text mainly about?
- A. A woman encouraging others to lead an active life.
B. An organization taking listening to the streets.
C. Therapists setting up chairs on sidewalks.
D. Volunteers helping others learn how to talk.

No doubt there are ups and downs in life. Whatever the situation is, you shouldn't lose your joy of life. Life is for a limited period only and no one knows how long he/she will live, so why do you waste your precious time in worrying about the things that are beyond your control? Be happy, and enjoy your life unconditionally (无条件地).

You enjoy good days but you also need to learn how to enjoy bad days, and even enjoy your pain. In 2016 when I was in Geneva, Switzerland, I suffered a sudden heart attack. My colleagues called an ambulance and I was taken to a hospital with much pain in my chest. Before reaching the hospital, I was totally exhausted with pain and was going to lose control of my emotions. Then the doctor in the ambulance said, "Don't worry; you are in safe hands." His words took away all my pain because I started realizing that it was no time to worry about the pain and that it was time to be happy that my life was safe. At that time, I learnt an important lesson that in pain there is a hidden joy and that whoever sees the bright side can enjoy the pain. My pain turned into a joy which greatly helped me recover more quickly than expected.

You not only enjoy success but you also need to learn to enjoy failure. Failure provides you with an opportunity to benefit from so many choices you've made. Celebrating failure will raise your morale and make you more powerful and determined to achieve success. We all make mistakes in life but only the courageous people not only laugh at their own mistakes but also let other people laugh at them and then they reach success without any spiritual burden (负担). A person who learns from mistakes and knows how to turn the bad situation into his/her favour is the most intelligent person and really enjoys his/her life.

- ()32. What does the author mainly tell us in the first paragraph?
- A. Life is full of ups and downs.
B. People's lives only last a limited period.
C. We should enjoy our life unconditionally.
D. Bad situations can be changed into good ones.

- ()33. Why did the author still feel happy when experiencing much pain?
- A. His colleagues were always with him.
B. He could be looked after by his parents.
C. He planned to enjoy the last days in life.
D. His doctor made him realize the value of being alive.

- ()34. What does the underlined word "morale" in Paragraph 3 mean?
- A. Talent.
B. Confidence.
C. Pleasure.
D. Inspiration.

- ()35. What can we learn from the author about the wisest person?
- A. He never laughs at others.
B. He has strong determination.
C. He is ready to do others a favour.
D. He is good at learning from mistakes.

第二节(满分 25 分)

阅读下面材料,根据其内容和所给段落开头语续写两段,使之构成一篇完整的短文。

When I was in Grade 10, my family had a tough time. My parents lost their jobs during the Depression. Dad was too ill to work outside, while Mum had a hard time raising us kids on her own in our small community. We relied on our community assistance to keep us clothed, and although our clothes were second-hand, we thought they were beautiful.

Looking back, I realize what Mum went through for sending us kids to school. Every morning she would put a new piece of cardboard in our shoes, because our shoes were worn out. Constant move was typical for my family in these times. The rent was twenty-five dollars a month, but Mum couldn’t pay it. These were hard and sad years, but we never complained.

New Year was approaching, and we were entitled to a twenty-five dollar fund for social services. Mum said that instead of buying food, she would use the money to pay back the rent, assuring us all of a roof over our heads for a little while longer. She told us then there would be nothing for New Year.

Unknown to Mum, I had been shoveling snow and doing odd jobs to earn enough money to buy a new pair of gloves. I knew exactly which gloves I wanted. They were made of genuine leather and they had a price of twenty-three dollars. Well, the big day came on the last day of that year. I was very excited, as I hurried up to catch the bus. It was only a half-a-mile walk, but on the way I noticed a house with lights and decorations. It was then that I realized at our house, we had no lights, no decorations, nor any money for goodies. I knew then that we would have no delicious food for New Year, and I felt sad.

As I continued walking, I began to feel bewildered. I was sixteen years old, and I was feeling a strange sense of guilt. Here I was going to buy a new pair of gloves while Mum was at home in tears. She would be trying to explain to us why there were no presents.

注意:续写词数应为 150 左右。

Paragraph 1:

The bus drove off without me. _____

Paragraph 2:

When Mum opened the door, she surprisingly found that some of the groceries fell inside onto the floor. _____
