How to adjust to a new school

【导读】学校是孩子们学习成功的基础。适应一所新学校会让人感到紧张和害怕。当你去上一所新学校的时候，你可能会担心你不认识任何人或者不能适应新的环境。阅读本文，或许你能从中感悟到应该怎样去适应一所新学校。

School is a child's base (基础), where they learn to succeed. Adjusting to a new school can make you feel nervous and scared. When you go to a new school, you might worry that you don't know anyone or that you won't fit in. As you get into your schoolwork and after-school activities, you'll find that you're making friends and that life is getting easier. Knowing about your school, preparing for the first day and knowing how to make friends can make this transition (过渡) a lot easier.

Take a tour of your school. Before you start school, go with your parents to visit the school. Find out where your classroom will be, as well as the cafeteria, auditorium (礼堂), gym and other important places.

Learn the rules of the school. Every school has its own set of rules that helps students stay safe and learn well. You may need a hall pass to teachers' instructions very closely. Making a good impression on your teachers will go a long way towards making a positive adjustment to a new school.

Make good decisions about making friends. When you are in a new school, you have the chance to make friends with anybody. It can be tempting (诱人的) to try to fit in with cool kids. You should, however, spend most of your effort making friends with people that you're comfortable around.

Set goals for yourself. By setting goals for yourself every day or every week, you can see how you are adjusting to your new school in very real ways. For example, you can say "I'll attend one club meeting this week", so that when you attend the meeting, you'll know you're trying hard to adjust.

B [2026·广东茂名高一月考]

Welcome to your freshman year of high school! Junior high is behind you, and now you enter a whole new world. But what should you expect about your freshman year of high school?

High schools are usually larger than any other school you've ever attended. Often, they seem to require a GPS device to get from place to place. As a result, it's important to take orientation days (迎新日) seriously. Take your schedule and walk it a few times before the first day of school. The more you know going in, the faster you'll feel comfortable.

Making new friends is both exciting and scary in high school. You'll be taking classes with people you've never met before, and they have whole new world views. Your friends may not share their lunch or study hall, so keep yourself open to finding others to sit with during those times. Other freshmen will be going through the same situation as you, and they'll need someone to sit with. If you see another freshman looking for a seat, provide a seat for him/her at your table.

When you enter high school, you will find your coursework becomes more difficult. Your coursework will greatly increase, and expectations (期待) from your teachers will be much greater than before. You'll have more homework, more papers, and harder exams. So learning how to study well is very important in high school.

One of the great things about high school is that there are more chances to take part in activities that interest you. You can expect to choose a number of fun activities during your freshman year. Taking part in activities allows you to meet new people and find out what you're really interested in.

- () 5. Why does the author suggest taking orientation days seriously?
- A. To get a GPS device for school.
B. To become familiar with the large high school.
C. To finish the schedule given by teachers.
D. To make friends with other freshmen.
- () 6. What does the author suggest doing after entering high school?
- A. Being open to new people.
B. Building a new world view.
C. Sharing the study hall with friends.
D. Spending certain time with old friends.
- () 7. What is one advantage of joining high school activities?
- A. It allows students to skip some exams.
B. It can reduce the difficulty of coursework.
C. It helps students know their real interests.
D. It helps students get better grades quickly.
- () 8. What is the writer's intention of writing this text?
- A. To encourage high schoolers to study harder.

- B. To explain the differences between middle school and high school.
C. To show the importance of orientation days in high school.
D. To tell about the freshman year of high school.

[2026·广东深圳盟校高一期中]

When my parents moved to a new city, I felt like my world fell apart. Everything that had once felt familiar was gone: my friends, my routines, even the streets I used to walk on. I didn't know anyone, and the thought of starting over terrified me. On the first day at my new school, I sat at the back of the classroom, hoping no one would notice me. The noise of students chatting made me feel even smaller, like a stranger who didn't belong.

But then, during English class, something unexpected happened. The teacher asked us to introduce ourselves by sharing a short story. My heart raced and my voice shook as I spoke about how my grandmother taught me to recite (朗诵) English poems under the stars in our backyard. I remembered the smell of jasmine in the summer air and the way my grandmother's voice carried a quiet strength. To my surprise, the class listened in silence, and when I finished, a soft round of applause (掌声) came from several students. For the first time that day, I felt seen.

After class, a girl named Lily came up to me. "I love poetry, too," she said with a warm smile. We talked about our favourite writers and the comfort that words can bring. She invited me to join the school's English club. The following weeks were filled with new experiences: reading aloud with confidence, preparing small plays that made us laugh, even writing our own poems and sharing them. For the first time since moving, I felt that English was not just a subject, but a bridge that connected me to others and gave me courage.

By the end of the term, I was no longer the quiet student in the back row. Standing on stage, reciting a poem with my new friends, I realized that starting over didn't mean losing myself—it meant discovering a new side of me, one that was braver, stronger, and ready to belong.

- () 1. Why did the author sit at the back of the classroom on the first day?
 - A. To avoid drawing attention to herself.
 - B. To observe the new teacher's style.
 - C. To make friends more quickly.
 - D. To get a better view of the blackboard.

 - A. Her grandmother's story.
 - B. Her teacher's praise.
 - C. Her friend's invitation.
 - D. Her classmates' applause.
- () 3. Which word best describes the author by the end of the term?
 - A. Anxious.
 - B. Confident.
 - C. Lonely.
 - D. Generous.
- () 4. What does the author's experience show?
 - A. True friendship always begins with hobbies.
 - B. Success comes only after repeated practice.

High school can be challenging for everyone.

You are going through an awkward time and you may either fit in right away or feel like a complete outcast. But no matter how well you may fit in (or not), joining a club will be good for you in the short term and long term.

Joining a club is a great way to meet new people especially if you are new to the school. Joining a club forces you to communicate with people who have similar interests to you. Even if you are the shyest and quietest person, you are sure to develop a relationship with at least one person in the club that you decide to join.

Another really nice thing about joining a club is that doing activities looks good on college applications (申请). Being known as outgoing is a highly important quality; it shows that you are determined and willing to try new things. Another nice thing is that it could help you develop skills that you could use during a college interview.

Many students struggle with productivity. Most teens go to school and then come home and spend the rest of the day in front of the television or phone, but activities can prevent this. Teens are easily influenced and if they end up with the wrong group of people, they may face bad results such as problems with the law. Clubs provide a safe place to spend time with friends.

Maybe the most important reason why you should join a club is the long-term benefit (益处) it brings. The classroom isn't the only learning environment in a school. Things such as meeting and speaking to new people, keeping an eye on the time, and being organized are things you will use every single day of your life.

[2026·广东茂名高一期中]

Going from middle school to high school can be difficult, as students are faced with new academic (学业的) and social challenges. Before the first day of high school, there are things every soon-to-be high school freshman and their families should know.

People who have a fixed (固定的) mindset believe that they are born to be great or weak. On the other hand, people that have a growth mindset believe that their greatness or weakness is because of their own actions. I totally agree that students should have a growth mindset. I don't expect any student to move from just passing a subject to an A+. It's going to take time and focused effort; just keep working on it.

Parents should prepare students to fight the battle “on the pillow (枕头)” and “in the kitchen”. When I say “pillow” I mean sleep. Not having enough sleep can have some surprising effects on students, including improper behaviour, anxiety and poor grades. The second weapon (武器) is eating healthy and balanced meals. Studies show that students who eat nutritious meals and who exercise 60 minutes a day remain more attentive during the school day and experience improved academic achievement and grades. This last “secret” weapon is not to have over-scheduled time. Make sure students know how to set realistic plans and how to say no to tasks and activities that aren't important to them.

A lot of students know each other from primary and middle school. They are in their “comfort zones”, feeling they have a sense of control over and expectation of their relationships.

But with the first real day of high school coming, that will all change. The reason I encourage high school freshmen to step out of their comfort zones, though often scary, is that comfort zones get boring and there are many kinds of people to get to know. Let's encourage them to get involved, have fun and play.

() 1. Which of the following represents (代表) a fixed mindset?

- A. I'm at the starting point of my ability.
- B. My mother is not good at chemistry either.
- C. I should start studying a little earlier next time.
- D. It's okay if I fail; at least I've learned something.

() 2. What might the author encourage parents to do according to the passage?

- A. To prepare healthy meals for their kids.
- B. To praise their kids when they do well in school.
- C. To take their kids to visit their grandparents often.
- D. To buy soft pillows for their kids to have a good rest.

() 3. What is the third weapon mainly about?

- A. Enjoying good health.
- B. Being able to say no.
- C. Planning schedules properly.
- D. Balancing schoolwork and play.

() 4. Which one is the best title of the passage?

- A. Making friends in high school
- B. Academic challenges in high school
- C. Differences between middle school and high school
- D. Preparations for high school: what you need to know

Mr Smith, the headteacher, noticed his unhappiness. One Friday afternoon, the teacher walked to him and said, "Tom, I've noticed that you've been a bit down lately. Is there anything wrong? Are you willing to share your feelings with me?" Hesitating (犹豫) for a moment, Tom said in a low voice, "I just can't fit in here. I miss my parents and old friends so much, and it seems that I have little in common with the classmates here." They talked for a long time that afternoon.

The next Monday, it was time for the class to change seats as usual and the headteacher asked Jack, an outgoing and helpful boy, to sit next to Tom. Growing up with movies such as High School Musical and Grease, which presented the ideal (理想的) high school friendships, we sometimes expect a perfect relationship. Indeed, some high school friendships can be real and simple, while still some high school students will meet a friend who causes trouble. With failed friendships come lessons and experiences learned for the future. You will know the influence after you leave high school.

“I was always worried about what my friends thought about me. Sometimes my friends would make fun of what I wore or what I would do. I always tried to get along well with them, but I realized how happy I was once I stopped contacting them after high school,” said Elisha, Class of 2020.

Most teens have not realized the big question when dealing with high school problems. In five years, will this still matter? It is hard to look at the big picture when the problems are in front of you, which is understandable. However, most teens need a moment to reflect (反思) and question if the problem matters in a long time.

Briana, a high school teacher, said, “Now, I am in contact with two high school friends. I think the friendship experiences I had in high school shaped who I am because I learned to be open-minded and befriend all kinds of people. I learned to see people for who they are, not what they wear or who they play with. I learned most of all how to be a good friend.”

High school is a small part of your life, but it has a huge influence on who you will become and where you will go. Friendships and relationships help shape who you are, whether they are good or bad. Lessons are brought, and lessons are learned.

- A. To introduce the topic of the passage.
B. To explain what a high school friendship is.
C. To recommend these two movies to readers.
D. To show the diversity of high school friendship.

- () 2. What did Elisha think of her “friends”?
- A. They made her feel blue.
B. They cared about her behaviour.
C. They got along well with her.
D. They were always worried about her.
- () 3. Why did Briana think her friendship experiences shape her?
- A. She learned to play with her friends.
B. She learned to make different friends.
C. She learned to shape her friends’ minds.
D. She learned to wear just like her friends.
- () 4. What’s the passage mainly about?
- A. Failed friendships make teens worried.
