Many of us have heard of the saying: everything is possible if you can just believe. But few of us really know the power of faith and perseverance. South African swimmer Natalie du Toit embodies those virtues.

Du Toit became the first swimmer to compete in both the Olympic Games and the Paralympics (残奥会) in Beijing. Although she finished 16th in the tough 10 km marathon in the able-bodied Games, she has collected three gold medals in the Paralympics so far.

One of the most successful disabled athletes of all time, Natalie du Toit was already a promising swimmer when she lost her leg in a motorcycle accident in 2001, at just 17.

"There are a lot of dark moments," Du Toit said. "There are some days when I cry. But I try to remember that better days are ahead. You just go on."

Within a few months, she was back in the swimming pool.

She still competed and still succeeded. The only difference was that she had switched to longer events—from the 200m and 400m individual medley to the 800m and 1,500m freestyle—to make up for her loss of speed with only one leg. But she made no adjustment to her mental outlook.

"Going out in the water, I feel as if there's nothing wrong with myself. It doesn't matter if you look different. You're still the same as everybody else because you have the same dream."

She is the owner of many world records, and she also won gold when competing against able-bodied swimmers in the 1,500m freestyle at the All Africa Games in 2007.

But there is no magic recipe for success. It all comes down to hard work and determination. "She is stubborn, which is good and bad," said her coach Karoly von Toros. "Good for the swimming, but bad for the coach."

There is a poem that hangs on her wall that reads:

The tragedy of life does not lie in not reaching your goals;

The tragedy of life lies in not having goals to reach.

1. Natalie du Toit is a vivid example that _____.

- A. you are what you believe
- B. your biggest enemy is yourself
- C. results are not so important as the process
- D. you must set reasonable goals or you will fail

2. The underlined word "embodies" in the first paragraph means "_____".

- A. makes
- B. creates
- C. represents
- D. introduces

3. According to the text, Natalie du Toit became _____.

- A. the first athlete to compete with able-bodied swimmers in the world
- B. the youngest disabled swimmer to break the world record in the 1,500m freestyle
- C. the youngest disabled swimmer to collect three gold medals in a single Paralympics
- D. the first swimmer to compete in both the Olympic Games and the Paralympics

4. Which of the following is the correct order of the events that happened to Natalie du Toit?

- a. She won gold at the All Africa Games.
 - b. She finished 16th in the tough 10 km marathon in the Olympics.
 - c. She adjusted herself to long events.
 - d. A motorcycle accident disabled her.
- A. cdab B. dcba C. dcab D. dach

In this new show, Evan Ruggiero plays the guitar, sings pop standards and shows everybody his fine footwork. What makes all of these especially unusual is that Ruggiero, 24, has only one leg.

When he was a 19-year-old musical theatre student at New Jersey's Montclair State University, Ruggiero had a rare bone cancer in his right leg. Finally his leg would have to be amputated (截) below the knee.

Such a setback could have easily ended the career of a less tough person, but Ruggiero, who has been dancing since he was five, now puts the experience into his performance. His show, The One-legged Song and Dance Man: Volume 3, explains how he returned to dance just 18 months after the amputation. His dance now relies on the use of a peg leg(假肢), he explains.

The secret to his surprising success, he says, was being a “stubborn” patient who refused to give up on his dance and performing studies, despite the advice of his doctor.

“It was a real setback, but after it was all over, I said, ‘You know what? I need to pick up right where I left off and continue my career,’” Ruggiero said.

Ruggiero has come to view his peg leg as an instrument. “Tap dancers—they’re always calling themselves musicians, and their feet are their instruments,” he said.

Noting that many audience members will never have seen a one-legged dancer before coming to his show, Ruggiero says he won’t shy away from the physical “weakness” his performance shows because of his condition.

“A lot of people have come up to me, and they always say, ‘You’re such a role model and an inspiration,’” he said. “I’m honoured when people say that, of course, but I’m just trying to get on with my life.”

1. What makes Ruggiero’s new show unusual?
 - A. His own artwork.
 - B. One-legged dance.
 - C. The use of instruments.
 - D. Songs of pop standards.
2. According to the passage, it is TRUE that _____.
 - A. his doctor agreed he kept on dancing and studying
 - B. the setback has ended Ruggiero’s dance career
 - C. Ruggiero is dancing relying on others’ support
 - D. Ruggiero is a tough person with a strong will
3. When the audience attend his performance, they may notice _____.
 - A. Ruggiero plays the piano, sings and dances
 - B. Ruggiero is a dancer with the help of a peg leg
 - C. there are many tap dancers in the performance
 - D. Ruggiero pretends to be a physically normal person
4. What’s the author’s attitude to Evan?
 - A. Encouragement.
 - B. Sympathy.
 - C. Worry.
 - D. Pity.

V. 阅读七选五

阅读下面短文,从短文后的选项中选出可以填入空白处的最佳选项。选项中有两项为多余选项。

Lifestyle changes are a process that takes time and requires support. Here are five tips from the American Psychological Association to help you make lasting, positive lifestyle and behaviour changes.

Make a plan that you will stick to.

Your plan is a map that will guide you on this journey of change. 1 Want to exercise more? Detail the time of the day when you can take walks and how long you’ll walk. Write anything down, and ask yourself if you’re confident that these activities and goals are realistic for you.

Start small.

After you’ve identified realistic short-term and long-term goals, break down your goals into small, manageable steps that can be measured. If your long-term goal is to lose 20 pounds within the next five months, a good weekly goal would be to lose one pound a week. 2

Change one behaviour at a time.

Unhealthy behaviours develop over the course of time, so replacing unhealthy behaviours with healthy ones requires time. Many people run into problems when they try to change too much or too fast. 3

Whether it is a friend, co-worker or family member, someone else on your journey will keep you motivated and accountable. Perhaps it can be someone who will go to the gym with you or someone who is also trying to stop smoking.

Ask for support.

Accepting help from those who care about you strengthens your commitment. If you feel unable to meet your goals on your own, consider seeking help from psychologists.

Making changes takes time and commitment, but you can do it. 5 Minor missteps on the road to your goals are normal and okay. Resolve to recover and get back on track.

- A. When making your plan, be specific.
- B. Just keep in mind that no one is perfect.
- C. Find a partner.
- D. Communicate with your friends.
- E. Careful planning means setting small goals and taking one step at a time.
- F. To improve your success, focus on one goal or change at a time.
- G. By taking steps gradually you’ll feel successful in meeting your goals.

Ammie Reddick from East Kilbride, Lanarkshire, was only 18 months old when she had the accident that had scarred (留下创伤) her for life. The curious child reached up to grab the wire of a hot kettle in the family kitchen and poured boiling water over her tiny infant frame.

Her mother Ruby turned round and, seeing Ammie horribly burnt, called an ambulance which rushed her daughter to a nearby hospital. Twenty per cent of Ammie's body had been burned and all of her burns were third-degree. There, using tissue (组织) taken from unburned areas of Ammie's body, doctors performed complex skin transplants (移植) to close her wounds and control her injuries, an operation that took about six hours. Over the next 16 years, Ammie underwent 12 more operations to repair her body.

When she started school at Maxwellton Primary at age 4, other pupils made cruel comments or simply wouldn't play with her. "I was the only burned child in the street, the class and the school," she recalled. "Some children refused to become friends because of that."

Today, aged 17, Ammie can only ever remember being a burned person with scars, pain is a permanent part of her body. She still has to have two further skin transplants. Yet she is a confident, outgoing teenager who offers inspiration and hope to other young burn victims.

She is a member of the Scottish Burned Children's Club, a charity set up last year. This month, Ammie will be joining the younger children at the Graffham Water Centre in Cambridge shire for the charity's first summer camp. "I'll show them how to get rid of unkind stares from others," she says. Ammie loves wearing fashionable sleeveless tops, and she plans to show the youngsters at the summer camp that they can too. "I do not go to great lengths to hide my burn scars," she says. "I gave up wondering how other people would react years ago."

- What did other children do when Ammie first went to school?
 - They were friendly to her.
 - They showed sympathy to her.
 - They were afraid of her.
 - They looked down upon her.
- Ammie will teach the younger children at the Graffham Water Centre to _____.
 - face others' unkindness bravely
 - hide their scars by proper dressing
 - live a normal life
 - recover quickly
- What does the underlined word "permanent" in the 4th paragraph mean?
 - Necessary
 - Lifelong.
 - Difficult.
 - Important.
- What can be the best title of the passage?
 - A seriously burned girl survives
 - Ways to get rid of unkind stares
 - Permanent scars and pain for a girl
 - A seriously burned angel of hope

If you think that running marathons will help you live a long and healthy life, new research may come as a shock. According to a recent scientific study, people who do a very strenuous workout are as likely to die as people who do no exercise at all.

Scientists in Denmark have been studying over 1,000 joggers and non-joggers for 12 years. The death rates from the sample group indicate that people who jog at a moderate pace, two or three times a week for less than two and a half hours in total, are least likely to die. The best speed to jog at was found to be about five miles per hour. The research suggests that people who jog more than three times a week or at higher speeds of over seven mph die at the same rate as non-joggers. The scientists think that this is because strenuous exercise causes structural changes to the heart and arteries(动脉). Over time, this can cause serious injuries.

Peter Schnohr, a researcher in Copenhagen, said, “If your goal is to decrease risk of death and improve life expectancy, jogging a few times a week at a moderate pace is a good strategy. Anything more is just unnecessary, and it may be harmful.”

The implications of this are that moderate forms of exercise such as t'ai chi, yoga and brisk walking may be better for us than “iron man” events, triathlons and long-distance running and cycling. According to Jacob Louis Marott, another researcher involved in the study, “You don’t actually have to do that much to have a good impact on your health. And perhaps you shouldn’t actually do too much.”

- The underlined word “strenuous” in Paragraph 1 is closest in meaning to “_____”.
A. hard B. regular C. practical D. flexible
- The author presents some figures in Paragraph 2 to _____.
A. suggest giving up jogging
B. show risks of doing sports
C. provide supportive evidence
D. introduce the research process
- According to the scientists, why is too much exercise harmful?
A. It may injure the heart and arteries.
B. It can make the body tired out.
C. It will bring much pressure.
D. It consumes too much energy.
- What can be inferred from the text?
A. No exercise at all is the best choice.
B. More exercise means a healthier life.
C. Marathon runners are least likely to die.
D. Proper exercise contributes to good health.

Last summer when my family was road tripping to Montana we arrived in Great Falls late one night. The kids had fallen asleep in the car, so my husband went and checked in while I stayed with the kids. When he returned with the room keys, we woke up our children and took them out of the car, through the hotel, up the elevators and into our guest room. We kept the room dark, leaving only the entry light on, and quickly put the kids into bed hoping they'd drift back to sleep.

My husband went to put our water in the mini-fridge only to notice some beers. "That's strange," he said and I agreed, but having discovered left-behind drinks in hotel fridges in the past I didn't think much about it. I figured the housekeepers had forgotten to check it. In the meantime, my husband ran to the store and I went into the bathroom to get ready for bed. As I washed my face I looked down to see cardboard beer containers in the trash. I felt my heart began to pound. We were in someone else's room!

Now panicked, I checked the closet. Nothing. I then went to the dresser drawers. Nothing. My eyes scanned the room's floor and there it was: a black bag that looked like one of ours. But it wasn't!

I immediately called the front desk and the waitress in charge responded with an "Oh, my God! This is not good!"

By now the kids were wide awake, jumping on the beds as I was trying to put all of our things back into our oversized suitcase. Just while we were packing our things, I heard someone was unlocking the door, which made my heart beating wildly.

Smriti Nagpal grew up with two of her hearing-impaired (听力受损的) siblings. But it did not stop the three of them from communicating their feelings with each other. Smriti learned the sign language to be the voice of her siblings. Smriti was well aware about the problems faced by the deaf people. She always wanted to do something for the community and in an attempt to create opportunities for deaf artists.

At the age of 16, Smriti volunteered at the National Association of the Deaf (NAD India). A few years later, she got a call for an audition (试镜) in a TV channel and she was selected. At that time she was studying business administration too. So, along with her studies Smriti became responsible for the Hearing-Impaired Morning Bulletin for the Doordarshan Network. That job gave her a lot of opportunities to understand her passion to solve problems in the deaf community.

Smriti Nagpal was motivated to take action, when she heard a story about a talented artist, having a master's degree in art, but he was doing manual (体力的) work in an NGO. Together with her friend Harshit, Smriti decided to help hearing-impaired artists and founded Atulyakala. Atulyakala is a for-profit social enterprise that lets deaf artists grow, learn, share and live a life of dignity and pride. They make profit from selling online and offline art pieces done by hearing-impaired artists.

Smriti Nagpal's work is indeed inspiring enough, for which she was counted in the list of "BBC's Inspirational Women for 2015". She was the youngest Indian woman on BBC's 100 Women in 2015 list. Smriti Nagpal has made Atulyakala a sustainable business, but what is more comforting to eyes is to see the artists leading a dignified (有尊严的) life.

- Why did Smriti set up Atulyakala?
 - To give a hand to those deaf artists.
 - To attract more and more great artists.
 - To gain more profit from the deaf artists.
 - To provide her siblings with a chance to work.
- While Smriti worked in a TV channel, _____.
 - she had to put an end to her studies
 - she got influenced by the staff
 - she hoped to do more for the deaf
 - she solved many serious problems
- How did Smriti feel when seeing an artist doing manual work?
 - Confused.
 - Disappointed.
 - Excited.
 - Shocked.
- Which of the following is implied according to the passage?
 - There are other Indian women on BBC's 100 Women.
 - Smriti is the youngest woman on BBC's 100 Women.
 - The deaf artists are all looked down upon on earth.
 - Smriti has gained a great deal of profit from the deaf artists.
